Dr. T S Satyavati started the session humorously stating that she understands the pain of listening to long lectures like the one. Taking up the topic of the session, Music and Healing, she said that the topic is such vast that days of lecture series would not suffice to cover it. She explained the essence of what Music was and also illustrated the varieties of genres in music. Accordingly, the varieties in taste of music different people have. To illustrate this, she took the reference of a well-known text 'Manasollasa', wherein the author of the text lists 14 types of musical taste that people have. The illustrations she gave of each of the musical taste were very interesting and engaging.

She also spoke about music therapy wherein she stressed that the effectiveness of music therapy lies in identifying the taste of music of the patient and accordingly providing the therapy. There cannot be generalization of music that which can be applicable to all the patients in all the cases. Success of music therapy lies in identifying the individual's taste of music and treating them accordingly, which in most cases in her experience have been successful. Day 3

The 3rd day FDP program was anchored by Dr Vijayalakshmi, Assistant Professor, Department of Biotechnology and Genetics. She welcomed the chief guest Professor Raghothama Rao and the Vice Principal Professor Jayaram over to the stage.

Dr Sathish Babu, Assistant Professor from Department of Biotechnology and Genetics introduced the speaker Prof Raghothama Rao.

Prof Ragothama Rao started his speech by giving the explanation why his talk is entitled as “Polish your brass”. He cited the book The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People by Stephen Covey stating that we as Teachers should constantly get updated. As teachers we should Learn, Unlearn, Relearn.

To achieve this goal, it is important to be:

1. Present to the present – Be mindful
2. Keep both ears open - from one ear you take the meaning and from another one you take the feeling.
3. Teachers should be always learning.

Always keep your mind open and do not jump to conclusions. Let us not be prejudiced about students. Always have an open mind and no bias. We are ready to learn from anybody. He said to always take a point of view from the other person and also have a complete holistic picture before you decide. He demonstrated it with a series of cartoons in a presentation.

He advised us to have a “Let me try” attitude instead of “I cannot” mindset. No one is perfect but our journey towards perfectionism should not stop.

Prof Rao said to develop a good sense of humour, take yourself lightly and others seriously. Humour is very essential for life, and he advised let there be spontaneity in humour. Humour can have sarcasm only if needed and it should not hurt anyone.

Prof Rao conducted activities to demonstrate the working of logical mind and creative mind, to think out of the box and the importance of keen observation.

Prof Rao stressed on the value relationship. He instructed us to let go of egotism, surrender egotism, and develop the let go attitude. Good communication is very essential to resolve the problems.

The program concluded with a vote of thanks by Dr Pavitra Kumari, Assistant Professor, Department of Biotechnology and Genetics.
