Case Study Competition: "Tracking the Truth – Financial Frauds"

Investigate. Analyze. Uncover the Truth.

The PG Department of Commerce (M.Com) organized a Case Study Competition titled “Tracking the Truth: Financial Frauds” on 10th July 2025 at 2:30 PM, held in Room No. 528.

The event aimed to enhance students' analytical thinking and ethical awareness by exploring real-world financial fraud cases.

Objectives of the Competition

- To Enhance Analytical Thinking:
The competition was designed to improve students' critical thinking and decision-making by analyzing real-life financial fraud cases.
- To Create Awareness About Financial Scams:
Students were encouraged to study various types of frauds, scams, and unethical practices in the finance industry.
- To Encourage Ethical Reasoning:
The event promoted discussion on corporate governance, transparency, and ethical behavior in business environments.
- To Strengthen Presentation and Research Skills:
Participants practiced breaking down complex financial cases and presenting their analysis with clarity and logic.
- To Simulate Real-Time Investigation:
The competition simulated the role of fraud examiners, encouraging students to connect academic concepts to actual fraud detection techniques.

Student Outcomes

- Improved Case Study and Problem-Solving Abilities:
Students developed logical frameworks for analyzing financial crimes, identifying red flags, and suggesting preventive measures.
- Enhanced Awareness of Corporate Frauds:
Participants gained insights into landmark fraud cases like Satyam, Enron, and banking scams, fostering real-world financial awareness.
- Stronger Research and Reporting Skills:
The event encouraged students to dive deep into sources, study case laws, and present data-backed arguments.
- Boosted Ethical Sensitivity:
The competition reinforced the importance of integrity, compliance, and corporate responsibility in modern finance.

Expert Talk on Comprehensive Overview of GST

Event Date: 25/07/2025

Time: 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m.

Organized by: Department of Commerce, in association with Directorate of Taxpayer Services, Bangalore Zonal Unit

Guest:

- Mr. H.T. Girish Rao, IRS; Additional Assistant Director, Directorate of Taxpayer Services, Bangalore Zonal Unit
- Mr. B.K. Gopalkrishna, IRS; Additional Assistant Director, Directorate of Taxpayer Services, Bangalore Zonal Unit

The main session was conducted by the Resource Person, Ms. Rachna, IRS. Her lecture, titled "Goods and Services Tax: A Story of Extraordinary National Ambition," traced the evolution of GST from its conception to implementation. She elaborated on the concept of GST as a consumption tax, explained the dual GST model unique to India, and outlined the significant milestones leading up to the launch of GST. Her session highlighted statistical achievements, the IT architecture supporting the system, and how GST has enhanced transparency in trade and tax compliance, especially in international trade scenarios.

Ms. Rachna also provided a comparative analysis of GST frameworks across other economies and discussed the technological and structural efforts made by the government in building a robust GST platform. She touched upon recent developments and gave students a glimpse into the future trajectory of tax reforms in India. The interactive session concluded with a round of insightful questions from students, which the speaker addressed with clarity and depth.

The session concluded at 12:30 p.m. with a formal vote of thanks delivered by Ms. Rupa, Head of the Department of Commerce, expressing gratitude to the guests, college management, faculty, and students for their enthusiastic participation. The event ended with the National Anthem and dispersal, marking the success of a highly informative and impactful academic engagement.
